

ABSTRACT

Phenomenological Study of Interpersonal Communication Community members in Indigo Children Indonesia

God created every human being with perfection, but it is undeniable that there are people who are born imperfect in shape physically and mentally. It can be a shortage or excess of how we interpret itself, as well as indigo children. The concept itself is a picture of a person about himself that was formed through the experiences gained from interaction with the environment. The purpose of this study is to describe the self-concept of indigo children community members in conducting interpersonal communication. The purpose of this study is to describe the self-concept of indigo children community members in conducting interpersonal communication. This research orientation are associated with the motive of the past, present, and future. The informant involved in this study were five children with indigo capabilities incorporated within the Community of Indigo Children (KAI). This study used a qualitative method with phenomenological approach. Data collection techniques used in this research is by interview, observation and documentation. This research data analysis techniques using data analysis techniques phenomenology by Van Kaam. Based on these results it can be concluded that the Indigo Children Community members consider themselves to have a positive self-concept and negative formed based on the experience of interaction in open thou the past, present, and future. Community Members Indigo Children (KAI) to assess their presence within the Community of Indigo Children (KAI) to change to the better of the various aspects of the private lives of members of the Community Indigo Children (KAI).

Keywords: Interpersonal Communication, Self-Concept, Indigo, and Motive