

ABSTRACT

The topic in this final project is about fingerprint verification. The necessary modul for fingerprint verification system that can extract feature, that feuture may became the unique characteristict to different one individual with others. This final project explain about segmentation using geometry computational algorithms method application for that modul. The result from fingerprint verification system simulation with this methode is not good.

Keywords : Fingerprint, verification, feature, computational geometry algorithms

STTTELKOM