

ABSTRACT

This final project discusses the making of coal clustering applications using K-means clustering which aims to classify coal data (one of the sectors in Indonesia that benefits the State) so that patterns and values can be seen in each cluster and can be easily analyzed for informations that are obtained from the data.

Keywords: clustering, k-means algorithm, coal.