

ABSTRACT

Everyone needs supporting products to help all work activities. For example, a staff or a manager who needs a desk to read and write. Moreover, during the current pandemic, offline work activities in the office have been limited and diverted to work online or work from home to minimize the spread of the COVID-19. Therefore, for work activities to continue to be carried out and productive, adequate facilities are needed to do work at home. Just like Maison Living is a moving company in the field of furniture and interiors. One of the products marketed is a home office work desk. This home office work desk is designed for those who work at home and products that are quite in-demand in the work desk category. But lately, the sales of the work desk at Maison Living tends to decline and is less desirable because it does not have other design variants and not fulfilling consumer needs while working and placing items such as files or documents, books, stationery and so forth. Therefore, the author will redesign the home office desk based on functional aspects, namely the design of a work desk which also equipped with storage rack facilities, with storage shelves no higher than the work desk.

Keywords : redesign, work desk, home office, function