ABSTRACT

Office is a facility to carry out work activities in a company, one of them is an outsourcing company PT. Integrated Service Solution (ISS) Indonesia. Activities performed in PT. Integrated Service Solution (ISS) Indonesia office are training class for employees, employee recruitment, contract agreement with clients, meetings with directors, and teams. Based on current situation, problem identified in this office is about space organization wich is not appropriate with existing activities. Therefore, the approach used in this design is activities and behaviors approach. Based on the results of data processing, main activities in this office are recruiting employees, training classes, meetings between teams, and individuals. The identity applied to the interior to improve the company's image to clients as well as activity performance of its users. It can be conclude that that the design of the office interior with this approach needs to put extra attention to each activity, especially its main activity, and also the identity of the company to reflect the image of the company.
