The Attorney General's Office of the Republic of Indonesia is a state institution that exercises state power, especially in the field of prosecution. The High Prosecutor's Office is located in the Provincial Capital in charge of leading a Province. In Riau Province there is a High Prosecutor's Office which is tasked with exercising state power in the field of law, especially in the field of prosecution. These fields have different tasks but are interconnected, it is this relationship that creates diverse work activities at the Riau High Prosecutor's Office. The work activities that occur within the Riau High Prosecutor's Office create a work culture that is formed formally and structured. This work activity is very common in the work environment of government offices. However, after making observations, problems were found regarding the work activities of office employees, such as the placement of zoning and blocking in buildings that were less effective, thus affecting the effectiveness of office employee work. Therefore, it is necessary to redesign the interior of the Riau High Prosecutor's Office using the Activity Approach. The activity approach was chosen to examine and study the activities carried out by office workers. This is done in order to find solutions in creating a better work environment.
