

ABSTRACT

Humans are creations of God who have better intelligence than living things on earth, have diverse mindsets and different points of view, making humans have their own advantages and disadvantages. Living as social beings who depend on each other certainly makes them have to establish good social relationships so that the life formed around them is well established, the process of interaction between individuals as a key in carrying out the role as social creatures, having differences in thinking certainly greatly affects how each individual views every social problem that occurs, the opinions of each individual are very influential in achieving common goals, but sometimes human nature that does not want to budge and has a high ego makes interactions between humans not well established, one of the characteristics of human egoism where humans always feel themselves the most right sometimes hinders good relationships between humans, even after there is social media that was originally designed to make it easier for humans who are far apart to connect with each other and establish good relationships, But it actually makes social conflicts easy to occur. Therefore, efforts are made to visualize this problem through eksperimental films that seek to make every individual who watches this eksperimental film aware that respecting the opinions of each individual can certainly guarantee our better social relationships and more easily solve problems that arise one day.
