

ABSTRACT

The online gambling phenomenon has recently become a problem for society, especially within families. Online gambling itself is a gambling activity carried out via the internet using electronic devices such as computers and cell phones. These activities include placing bets on casino games, sports, poker, or other forms of gambling. Online gambling activities carried out by someone often have a negative impact that is detrimental to those closest to them and their family. Online gambling also greatly affects relationships between family members if one of the family members is addicted to online gambling, such as how family members communicate.
