Abstract

Website is one of the effective and the efficient media that provides information. This media is supported by network technology which connected one computer to the other. It cause one side of computer user can communicate with the other user side. With this kind of technology, a website can be accessed everywhere as long as it connected in the network.

By those perceptions, then built the application in website form which connected by local network. This application is "Internal Website Application of PT (Persero) Angkasa Pura II Polonia Airport Medan" which is a web server. We can see from the tittle, the application is built by the requirement of PT (Persero) Angkasa Pura II Polonia Airport Medan.

As a web server application, this internal website application serves the request that has been sent by client for the facilities it provides. Those facilities including organized data store, file transfer, and communication. This internal website application is as a connection media from on side to the other side.

Keywords : internal website, information, connector, local network.